

Hasamat's Confidential Facts

Hasamat does not want to pay for any of the child's expenses. He will not agree to any parental support or liability.

Although Hasamat is a playboy and enjoys a good night on the town, he recently started thinking he may have low sperm count because he always wears very tight pants. Although it is not impossible for Hasamat to generate a healthy sample, it could be difficult. Hasamat would like $50,000 dollars per donation, and thinks it should only take a couple samples to produce a sample that will work for insemination. He thinks the whole process should take no more than a couple of months. He believes he is too busy to be in an extended agreement with these women due to his work and his nightlife. He also does not believe he can or should have to practice abstinence to be a donor.

Hasamat usually spends appropriately $800 a month on food. The donor is willing to part with his favorites Mt. Dew and the KFC as long as he is compensated. Actually, he has wanted to quit both of these things for awhile because he has had to work harder to work off a bubble gut, which slows him down when he plays sports. The bubble gut is also not popular with the ladies. He knows another donor who was compensated an extra $600 a month for switching to an all-organic diet.

Hasamat would like to retain some semblance of visitation rights to the child so he may instruct the child about its Kerplakistani heritage, but is willing to give up visitation in exchange for a guarantee that Ellen and Porita will take the child to vacation in Kerplakistan every year during the annual "Kuzcek running of the goat." This is something that he would rather do himself, as he feels that he is a much better instructor of Kerplakistani cultural heritage than Ellen and Portia.

Lastly, Hasamat is very, very leery of signing a contract because he believes that in the absence of a contract, he will be able to retain more parental visitation rights to the unborn child. He has also considered suggesting his cousin, who is a private veterinarian, perform the insemination because it may give him more parental rights, but he would understand if the women do not want a veterinarian to inseminate them (even though it would be entirely proper in Kerplakistan). He would only be willing to sign a contract only if the terms are very favorable to the child being raised in a heavily Kerplakistani culturally influenced home.