

Private Facts for D. Piddy

D. Piddy wanted to host the biggest Oscar after party to maintain his image and reputation for having the best Hollywood parties. He insisted on having paramount food at his party. To do so, he hired the Copper Chef team and insisted on serving the delicacy, blowfish at his party. The Copper Chef team informed Piddy that they only had one chef available to prepare the blowfish the night of his party and that this particular chef lacked the required amount of training hours and certification to serve blowfish as required by industry. Serving Fugu to the public requires a special license and an aspiring Fugu chef must first complete an apprenticeship before taking a 3-part certification test. Additionally, the Copper Chefs warned Piddy that blowfish has a high probability of death when cut improperly and thus, serving it in mass quantities is not recommended. Consequently, the Copper Chef had Piddy sign a release from liability from anything related to serving the blowfish.

D. Piddy is also well known for his men's clothing line, Sean John. The clothing line has been extremely successful, and Piddy is considering starting a women's line. He would like a model or actress to be the face of the new line. However, he requires the model to have an excellent reputation for high fashion and positive publicity.

Lastly, D. Piddy is threatening to counter sue for the damages he has suffered due to the negative publicity and magazine cover story about his party. He is suspicious of Vila's claims that she got sick from eating blowfish at his party as no one else at the party reported becoming ill. Further, due to the negative publicity surrounding his Oscar party, celebrities are declining their invitations to his upcoming Grammy party. Piddy has already spent $1 million on the Grammy party and cannot be refunded. Piddy authorized a settlement of up to $60,000 and would like to settle this dispute in a confidential matter to maintain his image and to allow his Grammy party to move forward. However, he is not willing to simply pay Vila off.